Declaration of Interests and Affiliations

Neil Phillips - Affiliations related to innovation

I:

- have held honorary professorial positions at The University of Melbourne and Monash University – (both institutions are involved in innovation).
- am a former Chief of Division in CSIRO – an organisation similarly involved in innovation.
- am a former board member of the Co-operative Research Centre for Landscapes, Environment and Mineral Exploration.
- led one of the partners of the Predictive Mineral Discovery CRC.
- chaired the science advisory committee of the CRC Landscape Evolution and Mineral exploration.
- am currently engaged in innovation related to the mineral industry, and in particular gold.
- am a Fellow of the Society of Economic Geologists and Australasian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy – both organisation involved in the application and dispersion of innovation, and/or with interests in fostering innovation to the benefit of their members and the community.

As a scientist actively involved in research, I am an innovation producer (in terms of the call for submissions).

As a member of the mineral exploration industry, I potentially stand to gain from successful innovation relevant to this industry.
